Andy Kravis, who created this puzzle especially for the Columbia Law School community, was a professional cruciverbalist (that means crossword puzzle maker) even before he received his J.D. He has published crosswords in the New York Times, Los Angeles Times, and Chronicle of Higher Education and is a founder of the Indie 500 annual crossword tournament. He is also an accomplished trivia master and quiz show contestant: The week before starting his first law job, in 2013, he paid off his student debt by winning $2.6 million on NBC's Million Second Quiz. Two months later, he published his first crossword in The New York Times; he joined its crossword staff in 2019.

As a law student, Kravis was a Harlan Fiske Stone Scholar and winner of the Allan Morrow Sexuality and Gender Law Prize. He worked as a Transgender Rights Project Legal Fellow at Lambda Legal, the LGBTQ rights organization, before turning to puzzle-making full time.
