

Joint Degree Registration Form

JD students wishing to pursue a joint degree program may do so contingent on acceptance by both schools in separate admissions processes. To ascertain each school's entrance requirements, tuition, financial aid policies, and deadlines, interested individuals are urged to visit each school's website for the most up-to-date information. Tuition will be charged according to the rates effective at the school in which the student is enrolled each term.

JD students who have been accepted by another school to pursue an additional degree must submit this form along with a copy of their acceptance letter to Columbia Law School's Office of Registration. Ad hoc joint degree programs may need to be referred to the faculty for approval.

Inquiries and requests for academic counseling can be directed to Robert Ford, Executive Director of Student Services at rf2659@columbia.edu.

If your plans change, and you will be in residence at the law school during terms other than those listed above, you must notify Registration Services before the change of program period (add/drop) ends for that term.

Note:

While You Are in Residence at the Law School: You can register for a maximum of 16 credits (including both Law School credits and other Graduate School credits) per term. You must submit a Points Petition Form to Registration Services to register for a 16th point of credit in a given term.

While You are in Residence at the other Graduate School: Please consult your academic advisor as the credit limitations vary by school/program per term.

Columbia University Student Financial Services has separate point limits related to tuition charge specific to schools/programs. If you register for more than the SFS point caps while in residence at the relevant school, the University will charge you extra tuition.

Please list the date you expect to have both degrees conferred: _____

(e.g. May 2022, October 2022, February 2023)
