Postgraduate Fellowship Toolkit

Prepared for the exclusive use of Columbia Law School students and graduates.
HOW TO USE THIS GUIDE

This toolkit is intended to guide Columbia Law School students and alumni who are applying to postgraduate fellowship positions. Use of this toolkit does not guarantee that an applicant will obtain a fellowship position.

We recommend that you begin by reading the entire toolkit in order to gain a full picture. Afterwards, you can return to the sections that are most relevant for where you are in the process.

For additional information, please contact the Social Justice Initiatives (SJI) office.
TABLE OF CONTENTS

Fellowship Overview ........................................................................................................... 3

Fellowship Getting Started “To-Do” List ................................................................................ 7

Fellowship Self-Assessment Questionnaire ............................................................................. 11

The Application ..................................................................................................................... 15

Essays, Personal Statements, and Cover Letters ..................................................................... 17

Fellowship Application Attachment Checklist .......................................................................... 18
  Resumes
  Transcripts
  Letters of Recommendation/References
  Letters from Host Organization

Resume Checklist & Sample Resumes ..................................................................................... 21

Building Your Team and Finding a Host Organization .......................................................... 30

Finding a Host Organization: Tracking Chart ......................................................................... 35

Sample Outreach Email .......................................................................................................... 36

Sample Thank You Email ....................................................................................................... 37

Fellowship Tracking Chart ..................................................................................................... 38

The Fellowship/Funder Interview ......................................................................................... 39
FELLOWSHIP OVERVIEW

INTRODUCTION
Public interest fellowships serve as an entry to a public interest career and provide access to many public interest jobs. Fellowships afford new lawyers opportunities to do social justice work in settings that match their passions. Fellowships enable these lawyers to launch themselves, obtain invaluable experiences, perform meaningful work, and forge contacts and relationships that will serve them throughout their careers. As a general matter, fellowship funding is provided for a fixed period of time (usually one to two years). Fellows may, however, have the opportunity to stay on at the organization as a staff attorney. Regardless, fellowships are valuable opportunities that open many doors.

TYPES OF FELLOWSHIPS
There are many different types of fellowships. Fellowships fall into five general categories, which are outlined below. Note that the first two categories (organization-based fellowships and project-based fellowships) are the most common.

1. Organization-Based Fellowships
A number of nonprofit organizations administer their own fellowships. Essentially, these are junior attorney positions within a legal organization that last for a finite amount of time. Fellows receive a stipend directly from the organization, and the organization determines the fellow’s salary and benefits and the duration and scope of the work. The fellowships vary as to eligibility and advantage — some prefer recent graduates or judicial clerks, while others welcome applications from 3Ls. These are the most common types of fellowships.

To apply, candidates go through a formal process directly with the organization. Deadlines fall throughout the year. Potential applicants should begin checking postings on PSJD.org in the spring of 2L year and should set up email alerts for new fellowship postings. Many fellowships are also on Symplicity.

Examples:
Center for Appellate Litigation Fellowship (criminal defense appeals)
Center for Reproductive Rights Fellowship (Women’s Rights)
Equal Justice Initiative Fellowship (Capital Defense, Mass Incarceration, Racial Justice)
George N. Lindsay Fellowship, Lawyers’ Committee for Civil Rights (Voting Rights, Employment, Criminal Justice, Education, or Housing and Community Development)
Human Rights Watch Fellowship (International Human Rights)
Karpatkin Fellowship, ACLU National Legal Office (Racial Justice)
Zubrow Fellowship in Children’s Law, Juvenile Law Center (Education, Juvenile Justice)

1 Also, please be aware that not all fellowships qualify for Columbia Law School’s Loan Repayment Assistance Program (LRAP). For example, fellowships for non-legal work and academic fellowships that do not include substantial law teaching may not qualify for LRAP. If you plan to apply for LRAP, be sure to check with the Office of Financial Aid about eligibility before accepting a fellowship.
2. Project-Based Fellowships

Some funders provide fellowships for applicants who propose a specific project, to be done at a nonprofit organization of their choice. The project is developed in partnership with the organization, often referred to as the applicant’s “host.” In addition to evaluating the applicant, the funder assesses the host, the project idea, and how well these pieces fit together. These fellowships usually are open to current 3Ls and judicial clerks but also vary as to whether they prefer/allow 3Ls, clerks, or recent graduates to apply.

The term of the fellowship is finite (usually one to two years), and the funder generally disburses the stipend amount to the host organization, which in turn pays the fellow. Different funders have different rules as to whether the funder or the host organization provides benefits to the fellow.

Funders typically have limitations on the types of projects they will fund—for example, funding may be limited to certain issues or approaches (like direct legal service poverty work) or to work taking place in specific geographical locations. Applicants must evaluate their projects against these restrictions.

An applicant may present a potential host with his/her own project idea if it is in line with the mission of the organization. Many organizations, however, have their own project ideas and are looking for candidates to carry them out. Ideally, projects are developed with input from both the candidate and the hosting organization. Be aware that organizations may have a formal application process for selecting a candidate to host. Check PSJD and the organization’s website for that information.

Note that applications for project-based fellowships require several steps, and some have early deadlines. We strongly encourage interested students to meet with SJI during the spring of 2L year and attend relevant information sessions. Contact Maddie Kurtz, Director of Public Interest Professional Development, if you intend to apply for project-based fellowships.

Examples:

- David W. Leebron Human Rights Fellowship
- Equal Justice Works (EJW) Fellowship
- Kirkland & Ellis Fellowship
- Tom Steel Postgraduate Fellowship
- Skadden Fellowship
- Soros Justice Fellowship
- Justice Catalyst Fellowship
- Independence Foundation Fellowship

3. Law Firm-Hosted Fellowships (Not Project-Based)

Some law firms offer fellowships in which the fellow is paid by the firm to work in the public interest.

Public Interest Law Firms: A fellow may be hired by a public interest law firm to work for a limited term directly on its docket, usually made up of civil rights-related cases.

Examples:

- Neufeld Scheck & Brustein, LLP Cochran Fellowship
- Shute, Mihaly & Weinberger LLP Fellowship
- Coben Milstein Sellers & Toll PLLC Fellowship
Corporate Law Firm with Public Interest Docket: A corporate law firm may hire a fellow for a limited term to work on its pro bono public interest docket.

Examples:
Gibbons Law Firm, John J. Gibbons Fellowship in Public Interest and Constitutional Law
Hunton & Williams Pro Bono Fellowship

Law Firm-Funded Public Interest Fellowship: A fellow may be hired to work for a limited time as a staff attorney at a public interest organization but be paid by a firm. There may be an expectation that the fellow will also work for the firm for some amount of time.

Examples:
Fried, Frank, Harris, Shriver and Jacobson/NAACP LDF, MALDEF Fellowship
Norton Rose Fulbright Fellowship at The Door Legal Services Center

4. Academic Fellowships
Academic fellowships assist candidates seeking graduate degrees or pursuing scholarly or research-oriented projects. Some include a stipend and tuition for the fellow to obtain an LL.M. degree, and some provide teaching experience—in most cases, clinical teaching experience.

Examples:
Fulbright Scholar Program
Yale Law School Robert M. Cover Fellowship
Georgetown University Law Center Fellowships

5. Entrepreneurial Grants
Graduates can also fund their own projects by starting a new organization with seed money, or by applying directly for grants, the way many nonprofit organizations do. Because of limitations on grant-giving to individuals, you may need to find a nonprofit organization to submit the proposal as your host. To apply directly for grants, see the Foundation Center website.

Examples:
Ashoka Fellowship
The Echoing Green Fellowship

PLANNING AND TIMING
Fellowship applications take varying amounts of time to complete, and deadlines fall throughout the year. It is important that give yourself enough time to identify the fellowships of interest, note deadlines and application requirements, and ready all the pieces you will need to apply. Always double-check an application deadline by looking on the organization’s website or by calling to confirm.

Project-based applications are due beginning in mid-September of the year before the fellowship is to begin (although, as the timelines contained in this Fellowship Toolkit demonstrate, work on these applications should begin in the late spring). Project-based applications take a significant amount of time to write and compile, often requiring a lengthy project description, personal essays, and several letters of recommendation—in addition to securing a host organization and identifying and developing a project. If you are planning to apply for a project-based fellowship, it is strongly recommended that you start early. Please consult the “Getting Started ‘To-Do’ List” and “Securing a Host Organization/Networking” sections in this toolkit for more information. Note that Columbia Law School offers several project-based fellowships with deadlines in the late fall and winter, thus allowing you to develop a project and apply after other project-based fellowship applications are due.

If you are exploring project-based fellowships, be sure to contact Maddie Kurtz, SJI Director of Public Interest Professional Development, as soon as possible. She is available to meet with you and will serve as your primary fellowship advisor to work with you throughout the summer.

You do not have to apply for a project-based fellowship. This process is not for everyone.

Organization-based fellowships: There are many organization-based fellowships, and their applications are more straightforward. These require the typical job application materials: cover letter, resume, transcript, and references, making the application process more familiar. You can apply for as many of these positions as you like throughout the year.

Beginning the search: Because each fellowship has different application requirements and deadlines, you will want to start your research early and get organized.

a. PSJD (Public Service Jobs Directory)

Beginning in the late spring, make sure you are monitoring PSJD and Symplicity for fellowship postings. Though there is no guarantee that everything is covered by these two sites, PSJD offers the most comprehensive list of organization-based fellowships and project-based fellowship funders. A good number of organizations seeking to host a fellow for a project-based fellowship also post on these sites. Once in the database, click on “Search Jobs and Employers” and then the “Advanced Search” tab. The system will allow you to search by employer profiles or by job posting. Clicking on the “Search for Job Postings” button will enable you to search by different categories. Scrolling down, you will find three fellowship categories under “Job Type”:

- Fellowship-Legal: Organizational (Fellowships administered and funded by the same organization)
- Fellowship-Legal: Project-Based (Fellowship funders as well as host organizations seeking candidates with whom to develop a project proposal)
- Fellowship-Legal: Clinical/Academic (Fellowships with a teaching component)

PSJD will allow you to set up an alert, and we strongly recommend that you do this. Go to “My Account” in the upper right corner and then click “My Email Alerts” to set up your search criteria (keep it broad) and receive emails when opportunities matching those are posted. Be sure to include all three categories of “fellowship postings,” and you will receive notice of organization-based fellowships, organizations with a formal application process looking to host someone, and funding sources.

PSJD also has very helpful fellowship listings in a chronological timeline in a section of their site. (Go to “Resource Center” and click “Deadline Calendar” under the “Postgraduate Fellowship” section.)

b. Symplicity
Any notice that is sent to anyone within SJI is posted on Symplicity.

c. Organization websites
Organizations offering fellowships will usually have information and instructions on their website. Organizations seeking to host a fellow may have a posting on their website, but many do not. Finally, the websites of the funders (e.g., Skadden, EJW) have a lot of useful information about their fellowships, as well as lists of former fellows, organizations, and project areas.

d. People
Do not underestimate the value of talking with people, even at the early stages. Alumni, current and former fellows, faculty members, former internship supervisors, and SJI advisors are all valuable resources available to you. They can assist in identifying and connecting you with other useful resources working in your areas of interest, identifying and evaluating organizations and fellowships, and developing project ideas.

Questions to ask
As you do your research, you will be asking such questions as:
What work do I want to do? Where do I want to be? What kind of project excites me? What are the funder’s priorities? What can I anticipate doing over the course of the fellowship? What level of supervision do I want?

In evaluating a potential host organization, you will surely want to ask:
Do I like the work of this organization? Can I see myself working there? Are its values and goals compatible with mine? How familiar is the organization with the project-based fellowship application process? Does the organization have specific project ideas? What kinds of projects does the organization have the capacity to support and supervise? Will there be someone to work with me on the application? Is the organization hosting more than one candidate?

And in the process of developing project ideas, you will be asking:
What population or community do I want to work with? What are their current needs? What can I do that will address unmet needs and fit with my skills, experiences, and interests? Will this project help launch the career I hope to have?
COLUMBIA LAW SCHOOL FELLOWSHIPS
Columbia Law School offers several fellowships to its students and graduates. It also partners with fellowship funders that designate spots for our students and graduates. They fall into several of the categories described above.

- Columbia Law School/International Senior Lawyers Project Fellowship in Sustainable Development
  This twelve-month fellowship enables a graduating J.D. or LL.M. student to work at the International Senior Lawyers Project, assisting with the management of the organization's projects in the fields of rule of law, natural resources, and investment and trade.

- David W. Leebron Human Rights Fellowship
  This fellowship enables a J.D. or LL.M. graduate to spend one year working in human rights either in the U.S. or abroad, in pursuit of a career in human rights law.

- Excelsior Service Fellowship Program
  This two-year fellowship supports J.D. graduates to work in New York State government alongside senior members of the administration.

- Global Public Service Fellowship
  This twelve-month fellowship, available to graduating J.D. and LL.M. students and to alumni who completed their degree within the past two years, supports work with a public service organization, intergovernmental agency, national supreme court, or international court host abroad. Preference is given to organizations based in the Pan-Asia region who are engaged in issues of international law and global consequence.

- Herbert and Nell Singer Social Justice Fellowship
  A one-year fellowship for a J.D. graduate who demonstrates the commitment, ability, and preparation to make a difference as a public interest lawyer. The fellow may propose a project or serve as a staff attorney at a U.S. nonprofit.

- Kirkland & Ellis New York City Public Service Fellowship
  This fellowship provides one Columbia student the opportunity for a year of postgraduate public service that meets serious human needs in New York City.

- LL.M. Public Interest and Government Fellowships
  For LL.M. graduates who demonstrate commitment to, and preparation for, careers in public interest, government, or human rights. Recipients work at a host in the U.S. or abroad.

- Mark Haas Public Interest Fellowship
  This fellowships supports one to two graduating J.D. or LL.M. students from China to pursue public interest legal work in the U.S. for three to five months.

- Norton Rose Fulbright Fellowship at the Door Legal Services Center
  This fellowship is awarded to one Columbia Law School or NYU graduating J.D. to work at The Door, New York's premier youth development agency, for 16 months.

- Sandler/Human Rights Watch Fellowship
  The fellow will spend one year at Human Rights Watch in New York or Washington, DC, monitoring human rights developments in various countries, conducting onsite investigations, drafting reports, and engaging in advocacy to publicize and curtail human rights violations.

Other:

- Norton Rose Fulbright Fellowship at the Door Legal Services Center
  This fellowship is awarded to one Columbia Law School or NYU graduating J.D. to work at The Door, New York's premier youth development agency, for 16 months.
- J.D. Public Interest and Government Fellowships
  J.D. graduates who demonstrate serious commitment to and preparation for careers as public interest lawyers are eligible for these one-year fellowships, which are designed to allow graduates to gain experience and skills, and also to provide talented young lawyers to nonprofit organizations and government agencies confronting great demand and diminished resources.

For a complete list of these fellowships, visit the SJI Postgraduate Fellowships page.

CONCLUSION

Whether you are developing a project-based fellowship, applying to other fellowships, or both, remember to get assistance from SJI. We can help you research an organization, contact former fellows and graduates, and organize and edit fellowship applications. Please contact Maddie Kurtz, SJI’s Director of Public Interest Professional Development, for more information.
FELLOWSHIP “GETTING STARTED” TO-DO LIST

Note: This schedule is geared generally to 2Ls, but most target dates will apply to other applicants.

☐ Preliminary contact and discussions with SJI.
   Target date: February/March of 2L year

☐ Attend fellowship information sessions this spring and in the fall.

☐ Set up PSJD.org alerts and begin regular monitoring Symplicity for organizations seeking to host a fellow and for organization-based fellowships.
   Target date: early April and continuing

☐ Complete Self-Assessment and review other materials in the Fellowship Toolkit.
   Target date: March

☐ Set up second meeting with SJI and have preliminary conversations with contacts you have identified.
   Target date: late April or early May

☐ Update resume. Make sure to refer to Fellowship Toolkit for guidance.
   Target date: before first meeting with advisor, but continue to update as needed throughout summer

☐ Create an initial list of fellowships in a Fellowship Application Chart to track of required materials, due dates, etc. for each. See sample Fellowship Application Chart in this toolkit. Note any early deadlines for fellowships and host organizations. Applications for the George N. Lindsay Fellowship with the Lawyers’ Committee for Civil Rights are due in May.
   Target date: mid-April with ongoing updates

☐ Make an appointment to discuss clerkships. If you are interested in clerkships and haven’t yet applied, make an appointment with a clerkship advisor via Symplicity.
   Target date: within the month of April

☐ If you are interested in applying to government honors programs, make an appointment with Rachel Pauley, Director of Government Programs, on Symplicity.
   Target date: early June, as applications are generally due in August-September

☐ Research hosts for project-based fellowships (unless a previous employer is hosting you). Look for organizations of interest; begin to think about project ideas. Conduct outreach, have conversations, network, seek ideas; consult with SJI/your fellowship advisor.

Target date: early June

☐ Check in with your advisor. Advisors are available for remote phone calls or Skype calls if you are not located near campus over the summer.

Target date: ongoing every few weeks throughout process

☐ Assemble your “team” of support (more information later in this toolkit).

Target date: June and ongoing

☐ Create a networking chart. Unless a previous employer is serving as your host, a chart will help organize your progress in securing a host. See the sample Networking Chart in this toolkit.

Target date: early June with ongoing updates

☐ Develop strategies for outreach to hosts: may be formal application materials or informal outreach. Plan for interviews/meetings with potential hosts; conduct interviews/outreach; continue to follow up. Consult with advisor and make sure to refer to the Fellowship Toolkit for guidance.

Target date: early June with ongoing outreach

☐ Continue to monitor PSJD.org and Symplicity and continue alerts for new postings.

☐ Think about potential references. Make sure to refer to the Fellowship Toolkit for guidance and discuss potential references with your advisor.

Target date: early June. Generally, you will wait until you have secured a host organization and project idea before reaching out to references, but it is sometimes appropriate to reach out earlier for preliminary discussions.

☐ Think about whether you are interested in being hosted by your summer internship organization. Approach them and find out their timeline and procedure for selecting a fellowship candidate.

Target date: mid- to end of June

☐ Finalize your fellowship list. Make decisions about which fellowships to apply to.

Target date: mid-July

☐ Order transcripts. When you know which fellowships you will be applying to, you can order transcripts to be sent from the registrar to accompany your applications upon completion.

Target date: mid-July

☐ Secure your host organization.

Target date: end of July if possible, but do not panic if you have not secured your host by then
Work on finalizing project ideas with your host organization.

Target date: early August

Once you have secured a host is secured and developed a project idea, contact references. Consult this toolkit for guidance.

Target date: early August

Draft application essays. With your advisor and host, set a schedule for draft essays and edits.

Target dates vary! EJW, Skadden and Independence Foundation, for example, have deadlines in September. Therefore best to begin drafting process in early August.

Share finalized project details. Set up date for three-way call between you, advisor, and host organization (if all parties are willing) to finalize project details and application plans.

Target date for EJW and Skadden: early August.

Contact Skadden Foundation director Susan Butler Plum if you are applying for a Skadden. When you have made substantial progress on your project, ask her a question about it.

Target date: mid- to late August

Continue work on application drafts, sending drafts to advisor and others for feedback.

Target date: ongoing

Ensure recommendations are ready to be sent out to accompany fellowship applications.

Target date for EJW and Skadden: late August.

Finalize applications. Once they are finished, submit them at least a day before they are due.

Key Target dates:
  - EJW application should be submitted online at least one day before the due date. The due date for this cycle is not yet available, but will be in September. Last year's due date was September 21, 2018 at 5pm.
  - Skadden application should be emailed at least one day the due date, which is September 16, 2019, 5pm.
  - Keep your eyes on other fellowship dates (including Singer, Millstein, and Soros).

Begin thinking about applying for other project-based fellowships with later deadlines (such as Kirkland & Ellis, Leebron, etc.). Meet with advisor to discuss applications.

Target date: meeting with advisor or SJI advisor in November

Complete other fellowship applications.

Target dates depend upon application. PSJD, Symplicity, and the SJI Monday Newsletter are great sources of information. Consult Maddie Kurtz, Director of Public Interest Professional Development, for guidance.
SELF-ASSESSMENT QUESTIONNAIRE

You are encouraged to fill out this questionnaire because you have expressed interest in fellowships. It will help you and your fellowship advisor think about whether this is a good option for you and which fellowships would be a good fit. If you are interested in project-based fellowships, the questions will help you think about hosts and projects. Don’t worry if you do not have an answer to every question!

If you already know which fellowships interest you, please list them here:

Goals and Values
If you could do anything after graduation, what would it be?

What are your short- and long-term career goals?

General Interests and Experience
How have you spent your time in law school (including summers)? Please list specific activities within each category or write N/A.

1L summer

2L summer

Term-time internships or pro bono projects

Clinics

Externships

Journals
Student organizations

Work for professors

Favorite classes

Moot court

Other

Outside of law school, what hobbies and activities have you been drawn to?

Do you have any relevant work experience prior to law school?

Specific Interests: Legal Area and Population
What substantive area(s) and/or legal issue(s) interest you the most? Why?

What population do you want to serve?

Have you worked with this population prior to or during law school (including summers)?

Advocacy Methods
Which advocacy methods interest you? Check all that apply.

- _____ Direct legal services
- _____ Grassroots advocacy/community organizing
- _____ Impact litigation
- _____ Legislative/regulatory work
- _____ Policy
- _____ Media

Other: __________________________________________________________________________________
Have you used any of these tools in your prior work experience? How and where?

Location
What geographic regions are you open to working in? Check all that apply.

- _____ Specific city/state/country/region: ____________________________________________
- _____ Domestic
- _____ International
- _____ Urban
- _____ Rural
- _____ Other: __________________________________________________________________

Type of Organization/Work Environment
What qualities are important to you?

How do you want to spend your time on a day-to-day basis? Check all that apply.

- _____ Research and writing
- _____ Investigative reporting, documentation
- _____ Interviewing and representing clients
- _____ Oral advocacy
- _____ Drafting legal education materials/policy manuals
- _____ Organizing grassroots efforts

Other: ______________________________________________________________________

Do you have experience with any of these activities? Where?

Would you be interested in returning to any of the organizations at which you previously worked, either for a project-based or an organization-based fellowship? If so, which organization(s)?

Other organizations that interest you?
Next Steps

The following people might be helpful for me to speak with:

I want to find out more about:

Questions I have at this time:
THE APPLICATION

Fellowship applications all differ from one another, and so careful attention must be paid to the specific goals of each fellowship, and the requirements and components of each application. In addition to the available written instructions, it is helpful to speak with SJI and former fellows to gather other useful information. Overall, think about your application as a piece of advocacy: its purpose is to convey why you are the right person for this project or work and, if you are proposing a project, that the project addresses an important need and is realistic within the time frame given.

Some preliminary considerations:

Are you qualified?
This is an essential question asked in all fellowship applications, but different funders set different qualifications, and emphasize them differently. Some fellowships value grades and other indicia of academic success; some even prefer that a candidate complete a clerkship first. Others put greater emphasis on relevant experience, and demonstrated commitment to the particular issue or client population. Again, conversations with SJI and former fellows are helpful in assessing how your qualifications are likely to be viewed, and what you should highlight.

Are you committed to the work and the goals of the organization?
All fellowship funders look for commitment. But what exactly is that? Essentially it is an expression of, and demonstration of, deep caring for the issues and goals of the fellowship, thoughtful articulation of why you want this fellowship and how you have developed the necessary skills and knowledge to carry it out. Prior work with the fellowship organization, experience with the legal issues and/or client population through clinics, externships, coursework, summers, pro bono and even pre-law school involvements are good ways to demonstrate this commitment. Some connection or familiarity with the community you wish to serve is often extremely valuable. Your cover letter and/or personal statements will pull together your experiences (which may be personal, academic, and work-related) to present a cohesive “journey” and compelling narrative.

Components of an application package
Different fellowship funders may request different materials, and applicants are expected to follow the instructions precisely. Many organization-based fellowships require the same materials as job applications: cover letter, resume, law school transcript, writing sample, and recommendation letters or a reference list. Project-based fellowships require additional materials such as: a personal statement(s), a project description, and a letter from your host organization.

Note that it is extremely important that your materials be free of errors, and conform to application requirements and restrictions. Your materials and those from your recommenders and hosts must be consistent and relevant, and address the priorities of the funder. It is always the case that putting the application package together takes more time than anticipated.

For project-based fellowship applications, your application as a whole should provide information and support for the following:

- The project is consistent with the funder’s goals and priorities.
- There is a significant need that can be addressed by your project.
- You have a connection to the work/community/issues involved in your project.
- Your project proposes a feasible way to meet the need.
- You have the skills, knowledge and abilities to carry out the project.
- The project has support within the community/from existing organizations.
- Your project is different from the work of a staff attorney.
- Your host organization has the capacity to provide good supervision and support for your project.
- The fellowship period will provide enough time for your project to succeed and have an impact.
ESSAYS, PERSONAL STATEMENTS, AND COVER LETTERS

You may be asked to provide a personal statement. If not, you will certainly write a cover letter. These are opportunities to highlight and explain your commitment and abilities to the work you will do as a fellow. This can be difficult, and it is often helpful to talk through your ideas with your fellowship advisor. The key is to articulate why you are committed to this work, and how your experiences, skills, knowledge, abilities and commitment will enable you to excel as a fellow. What has motivated YOU to do this work? Think about a narrative that pulls together your experiences and how they have impacted you. Sometimes a personal anecdote or story can be effective in expressing why you care about an issue or community.

For project-based fellowships, your project proposal is central. Whether you begin by identifying an organization you are interested in, an issue you want to address, or a community you want to work with, the details of the project itself will be developed by collaboration between you and your host organization. The proposal itself will need to convey a lot of information in a concise way. This requires spending a good amount of time developing the project and working on details with your host organization, seeking guidance, information and ideas from former fellows and relevant experts, and going through a number of written drafts.

EJW has useful information on its website, including a sample set of essays.
FELLOWSHIP APPLICATION ATTACHMENT CHECKLIST

The required submissions for fellowship applications vary. Each will state clearly the required components, and you will need to make sure to comply strictly. In addition to essays and, for project-based fellowships, a project proposal and materials from the host organization, most fellowships also require resumes, references, and transcripts. Below are some helpful tips for these parts of the application.

Resumes

- You should use the Public Interest Job Search Toolkit for general guidance on resumes. It is available on the Job Search Tools page of the SJI website.
- Included here are a resume “checklist” and some sample resumes for reference.
- Make sure to update your resume to include your 2L summer internship, as well as 2L and 3L (done or certainly to be done, not speculative) clinics, externships, pro bono work, student group leadership positions and so forth. In other words, add any experiences (including non-legal work) relevant to the work you are applying to do and that you may have omitted from earlier versions of your resume (but be clear in indicating timeframes).
- Focus on the descriptions of your public interest work and community service activities. You want to give a detailed picture of your commitment, your experience and your knowledge of the work you are proposing to do, the skills you will use, and the community you propose to work with. Make sure you have highlighted the experience and skills more relevant to your proposed project and the priorities of the funder.
- Make sure your international experience is framed in terms that will appeal to domestic employers (or vice versa).
- For fellowships, it is generally fine if your resume goes beyond the typical one page, but we recommend that you consult with your advisor.
- Make sure that there are no typos!!

Transcripts

- Some applications (like Skadden, Singer, Kirkland & Ellis, and Leebron) require transcripts.
- Official transcripts can be obtained at University Registration Services in Kent Hall.
- Some funders care about grades; others are interested in the classes that you chose to take.

Letters of Recommendation/References

- Most fellowships require written letters of recommendation. Some funders also contact references by phone. Some specify at least one employer reference, others a law professor.
- Read and follow specific requirements set forth in the application instructions.
- If not specified, aim for a mix of law school professors (preferably clinic or externship professors) and legal employers (such as a summer job supervisor or pro bono supervisor).
• Make sure your references know you well and have a good sense of your experience, goals and skills. It is better to have someone who knows you well than someone who has a fancy title or is better known in the field but does not know YOU as well.
• Make sure your references are willing to serve as (and will be good) references. This includes being someone who will submit the letter before the deadline.
• Be clear whether you need written references, or oral references, or both.
• Discuss with your recommender the fellowship you are applying for, the kind of work you will be doing, and why you are eager to do it. Provide references with a copy of your resume. Follow up, IN WRITING, with the name and details of the fellowship and your project and host organization if applicable. Remind them of the work you did for them; prepare key points (a bulleted, easy-to-read list) that you would like them to highlight in the reference.
• For written references, give clear instructions about where and when the letters should be sent. Some fellowships require electronic submission of references, while others want hard copies. Some require that the letters be submitted with the rest of the application materials.
• Give plenty of lead time – do not wait until the last minute.
• Some references will ask you to draft a letter that they will edit. This is a common practice and you should agree to do it. Use the bulleted list you prepared as your starting point, but ask for feedback from an SJI advisor to be sure you are positive and effusive enough about your accomplishments.

Letter from Host Organization
Project-based fellowships applications will invariably call for a letter from your host organizations (sometimes referred to as the employer’s letter of support). Some employers will be familiar with crafting this kind of letter, and some will not. You should discuss this letter with those you are working with at your organization to make sure that the letter will contribute all that it can to your application.

Ideally the letter should address—and provide support for—the need for the proposed project, the organization’s position and capacity to host the project and supervise you, and why you are exceptionally well-suited both to carry out the project and to work within the organization.

The following is a checklist of details that the employer should include in its letter of support (though not necessarily in this order):

Information about the employer
• What the organization does (its work, goals, and methods).
• The role of the individual writing the letter within the organization (and the individual’s relevant experience).
• If applicable, that the organization has hosted fellows previously.
• Why the organization is the perfect host for this project (the organization’s knowledge base, place within the community, history, and expertise).
• That the organization would not otherwise be able to undertake this this work.
● The organization’s capacity and capability to provide excellent supervision.

Information about you (the applicant)
● The applicant’s history with the organization (if applicable)
● The organization’s opinion that you are especially well-suited to carry out this project (and work within this organization) and the basis of this conclusion.

Information about the project
● The need for the project broadly (e.g. what problem will it address? Why is this project timely? What will be accomplished within the fellowship period? What impact might there be after?)
● A description of how the project will be distinct from or will supplement the work the organization is currently doing. It might also address how the project is distinct from work of other organizations in the same field.
● Clear indication that the applicant and the organization have a full and mutual understanding about the goals and parameters of the project.
● How the fellow (and the project) will be supervised and integrated into the organization.
● If applicable, how the fellow (and the project) will be part of a larger advocacy community, and will work in collaboration with community partners.

To produce a strong letter, the writer therefore must be familiar with the project proposal, knowledgeable about why it is needed, and able to articulate why you are the right person to carry it out. Sometimes the writer is someone you have met and worked with to develop the project proposal, but sometimes not. Be sure the writer has your resume and has reviewed drafts of the project proposal.

To further assist with the letter applicants should provide written guidance to the employer outlining:
● Information about and key priorities of the funder.
● Key projects that you have worked on for the employer.
● Key items from your resume, work history or personal background that you believe are particularly relevant, or would be useful for the employer to mention.
● Other information you think should be referenced in the letter.
RESUME CHECKLIST

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Yes</th>
<th>No</th>
<th>FORMAT</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>The document is one page in length or, if appropriate, two pages</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>11- or 12-pt font (such as Times New Roman or Garamond) with generous margins</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>NO Typos or grammatical errors</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>No underlining or bullet points</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Format is similar to our samples</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Resume is not cluttered and is easy to read</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Yes</th>
<th>No</th>
<th>CONTENT</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>The resume has a top header and “Education” and “Experience” sections</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Your contact information is professional and up to date</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>The resume is tailored to the position/organization you’re seeking</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>All relevant jobs, volunteer work, and activities are included</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>You have included pro bono work, internships, externships, clinics, journals, on-campus organizations, and research for a professor</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>There are no “Interests” (unless special circumstances exist) or “Objective” sections</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>You have not included computer skills, classes (except clinics or externships), or grades (except honors)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>All high school information has been removed (see an SJI counselor if special circumstances exist)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>You have included (if applicable) Languages, Bar Membership and Publications</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Sample 3L Resume

GERALD DAVINGNON
222 West 121st Street, Apt. 3K, New York, NY 10027
(212) 555-6677 • ghd323@columbia.edu

EDUCATION

Columbia Law School, New York, NY
J.D., expected May 2018
Honors: Columbia Law Review, Senior Editor
Harlan Fiske Stone Scholar (for academic achievement): Fall 2015, Spring 2016
Activities: Rightslink
Human Rights Internship Program
Capital Appeals Project (death penalty relief trip, March 2016)

Columbia University, New York, NY
B.A., received May 2013
Major: Economics and Political Science
Honors: Dean's List
King's Crown Leadership Award
Activities: Middle East Initiative, Co-founder (Arab-Jewish discussion group)

International School of Geneva, Geneva, Switzerland
Bilingual International Baccalaureate Diploma, received August 2013

EXPERIENCE

Center for Constitutional Rights, New York, NY Summer 2017
Summer Intern
Researched and wrote memoranda on: immigrants’ due process rights, governmental infringement of the Fourth Amendment, racial discrimination patterns in law enforcement, and various issues arising out of international human rights litigation in U.S. courts.

National Coalition for Haitian Rights, Port-au-Prince, Haiti Summer 2016
Summer Intern
Assisted activists and lawyers in monitoring the judiciary, police, and other governmental institutions. Organized basic legal and human rights education seminars for members of grassroots organizations. Investigated abuses of Haitian migrant workers in the Dominican Republic.

Intern
Trained youths in the use of video equipment and interviewing techniques at the Palestinian refugee camps in Lebanon for Witness, a LCHR film project. Helped gather testimony.

UN Conference on Trade and Development, Geneva, Switzerland Summer 2013
Intern
Researched and wrote on North-South inter-firm cooperation in the construction industry and its effects on technology transfer and development.

LANGUAGES Fluent in Arabic and French.
Sample 3L Resume

J. Collins
2 Prospect Place, # 8, Brooklyn, NY 11217
(555) 555-5555 • jc3232@columbia.edu

EDUCATION

COLUMBIA LAW SCHOOL, New York, NY
J.D., expected May 2018
Activities: Environmental Law Moot Court
Harlem Tutorial Program
Columbia Journal of Law and Social Problems

UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO, Chicago, IL
M.A. in Social Sciences, received May 2009

HARVARD COLLEGE, Cambridge, MA
B.A., cum laude, in Social Studies, received May 2008
Activities: Director of Operations, Harvard Square Homeless Shelter

EXPERIENCE

IMMIGRATION CLINIC
Student participant
New York, NY
Fall 2017

MFY LEGAL SERVICES
Intern
New York, NY
Summer 2017
Conducted intake interviews, staffed weekly clinic at supported housing sites. Assisted attorneys in civil matters, including housing, public benefits, and workers’ compensation claims. Drafted portions of brief in suit claiming insufficient services in federally funded nursing home.

FUND FOR MODERN COURTS
Intern
New York, NY
Summer 2016
Assist in lobbying and coalition-building efforts for structural reform of New York’s judicial system. Wrote a report identifying areas in which that court failed to comply with New York court regulations.

PROFESSOR RICHARD BRIFFAULT, COLUMBIA LAW SCHOOL
Research Assistant
New York, NY
Summer 2016
Researched state-level campaign finance and lobbying regulations.

LAMP COMMUNITY
Development Consultant
Los Angeles, CA
Summer 2012 – Winter 2015
Coordinated fundraising efforts for a non-profit corporation in the Skid Row area of downtown Los Angeles providing housing and supportive services to mentally ill homeless people.

SRO HOUSING CORPORATION
Case Manager
Los Angeles, CA
Fall 2009 – Spring 2011
Assisted homeless and very low-income senior citizens in their efforts to secure permanent housing and access social services. Generated and submitted reports documenting aid provided.
Sample 3L Resume

DOUGLAS POVINELLI
22 West 102nd Street, Apartment 4C, New York, NY 10025
(917) 677-7777 • douglas.povinelli@law.columbia.edu

EDUCATION
Columbia University School of Law, New York, NY
J.D., expected May 2018
Honors: James Kent Scholar 2015-2016 (for outstanding academic achievement)
        Emil Schlesinger Labor Prize (for student most proficient in the subject of labor law)
        Class of 1912 Prize (for first-year student most proficient in the subject of contracts)
Activities: Unemployment Action Center

Columbia University, Columbia College, New York, NY
B.A., summa cum laude, received May 2014
Honors: Phi Beta Kappa, inducted junior year (for the top two percent of the graduating class)
        Dean's List, all semesters
        Columbia University Named Scholarship
Activities: Columbia University Student Health Outreach, Coordinator

EXPERIENCE
Fried, Frank, Harris, Shriver & Jacobson LLP, New York, NY
Summer Associate, May 2017-July 2017
Conducted research and wrote memos on a variety of tax law questions, with a particular focus on the taxation of real estate and real estate transactions. Wrote a report on proposed Treasury Regulations for the NYS Bar Association. Conducted research for a matter litigated before Tax Court.

South Brooklyn Legal Services, Foreclosure Prevention Project, Brooklyn, NY
Summer Intern, June 2016-August 2016
Drafted motions on behalf of foreclosure defendants. Conducted research and wrote memos on predatory lending and related real property questions for ongoing litigation in both state and federal court. Advocated for clients facing foreclosure by calling lenders to negotiate loan modifications. Staffed a walk-in clinic at Brooklyn Supreme Court and advised clients of their rights before and during foreclosure.

Lenox Hill Neighborhood House, New York, NY
Health Care Advocate, June 2014-August 2015
Advised clients of legal rights with respect to public benefits and tenant-landlord disputes. Represented clients who were erroneously denied benefits at administrative hearings. Enrolled individuals into public health insurance programs. Assisted clients in applying for food stamps, Medicare Savings Programs, Unemployment Insurance Benefits, Public Assistance and other public benefits. Conducted self-help workshops on public benefits.

Food Bank for New York City, New York, NY
Prepared agency directors for testimonies before the New York City Council on summer meals and obesity. Researched and coauthored policy papers that proposed legislative and community-based approaches to hunger relief. Facilitated meetings of emergency food providers and elected officials to discuss implementing hunger policy.
MARY CUMMINGS BROWN
200 New Jersey Ave., NW, Apt. 12E, Washington, DC 20001
marybrown@gmail.com | (202) 222-2222

EDUCATION
COLUMBIA LAW SCHOOL, New York, NY
J.D., received May 2015
Honors: Pauline Berman Heller Prize Fund (highest-ranked female graduating law student)
Best Oral Argument, 1L Moot Court Competition
Columbia Law Review, Notes Editor
Activities: Law Students for Reproductive Justice

YALE UNIVERSITY, New Haven, CT
B.A., received May 2012
Honors: Degree awarded cum laude and with departmental honors in Art History
Activities: Yale Daily News, Staff Reporter

EXPERIENCE
NATIONAL WOMEN’S LAW CENTER
Staff Attorney Washington, DC 2015 – present

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE PROSECUTION EXTERNSHIP
Assistant DA (under special student practice order) New York, NY Spring 2015
Handled own prosecution of misdemeanor domestic violence cases at Queens Family Justice Center, in conjunction with Columbia Law School externship placement at Queens District Attorney’s Office.

CENTER FOR REPRODUCTIVE RIGHTS
Legal Intern New York, NY Summer 2014
Researched evidentiary issues for challenge to state law requiring pregnant women to view ultrasounds prior to scheduling abortions. Drafted memo assessing potential legal challenge to recently introduced state fetal personhood law. Participated in national conference calls on state and federal legislative issues.

LINCOLN CENTER FOR THE PERFORMING ARTS
Legal Intern New York, NY Summer 2013
Drafted memoranda and assisted the General Counsel on a broad range of legal issues, including entertainment law, intellectual property law, labor and employment law, and trusts and estates.

BAR MEMBERSHIP
Admitted to NY and DC Bars. Member of DC Bar Committee on Gender and the Law.
Sample Graduate Resume

SAMIR PATEL
202 West 99" Street, New York, NY 10024
sjp@gmail.com • 202-228-2297

EDUCATION
COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF LAW, New York, NY
J.D., received May 2014
Honors: Kent Scholar 2011-2012 (for outstanding academic achievement)
        Stone Scholar 2012-2013 (for superior academic achievement)
        Hamilton Fellowship (merit-based full tuition scholarship)
Activities: Columbia Journal of European Law (member of editorial board)
            Student Senate (Graduation Co-chair)

GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY, Washington, DC
B.A., magna cum laude, in History and English, received May 2011
Honors: Phi Alpha Theta, National History Honors Society
Activities: The Georgetown Voice (staff writer)

EXPERIENCE
FEDERAL RESERVE BANK OF NEW YORK
New York, NY
Recent Law School Graduate Fellowship
Summer 2014-present
Brief senior staff in preparation for congressional hearing; analyze Dodd-Frank rule proposals; assist in the implementation of transparency initiatives; help craft legislative proposals for aiding underwater mortgage holders.

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION
Washington, DC
Law Clerk, Bureau of Consumer Protection
Summer 2013
Surveyed state law on fair hiring practices; prepared training memo on the Commission’s consumer protection jurisdictional constraints; surveyed emerging legal concerns with social networking websites.

NEW YORK CITY LAW DEPARTMENT
New York, NY
Extern, Administrative Law Division
Spring 2013
Wrote answers to Article 78 petitions for the NYPD Licensing Division and the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene; researched a variety of agency practices; prepared documents for court submission.

NORTH CAROLINA DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE
Raleigh, NC
Legal Intern, Consumer Protection Division
Summer 2012
Interviewed consumers and wrote declarations; drafted CIDs; participated in e-discovery; prepared legal memoranda on issues of federal law; filed consent decrees at state courthouse; wrote criminal appellate brief regarding plea bargaining.

BAR ADMISSIONS
Admitted in New York State and Southern District of New York.
Portion of Resume with Joint Degree: Option 1

ERIC ANDERS
105 W. 120th St., Apt. 2n, New York, NY 10027
212.699.9999 • Eric.Anders@law.columbia.edu

EDUCATION
COLUMBIA LAW SCHOOL, New York, NY
J.D., expected May 2018
Activities: American Constitution Society Moot Court
Columbia Human Rights Law Review
Columbia Society of International Law

PRINCETON UNIVERSITY, WOODROW WILSON SCHOOL OF PUBLIC AFFAIRS, Princeton, NJ
M.P.A, expected May 2018
Concentration: International Relations

RICE UNIVERSITY, Houston, TX
B.A., magna cum laude, received June 2014
Activities: Semester Abroad at University of London
Big Brothers Big Sisters Program
Thesis: The Remaining Resistance: The Role of the South African Council of Churches (SACC) in the Anti-Apartheid Struggle

Joint Degree: Option 2

ERIC ANDERS
105 W. 120th St., Apt. 2n, New York, NY 10027
212.699.9999 • Eric.Anders@law.columbia.edu

EDUCATION
COLUMBIA LAW SCHOOL/ PRINCETON UNIVERSITY, WOODROW WILSON SCHOOL OF PUBLIC AFFAIRS, New York, NY/ Princeton, NJ
Joint J.D./Master of Public Affairs Degree, expected May 2018
Concentration: International Relations
Activities: American Constitution Society Moot Court
Columbia Human Rights Law Review
Columbia Society of International Law

RICE UNIVERSITY, Houston, TX
B.A., magna cum laude, received June 2014
Activities: Semester Abroad at University of London
Big Brothers Big Sisters Program
Thesis: The Remaining Resistance: The Role of the South African Council of Churches (SACC) in the Anti-Apartheid Struggle
SOLOMON A. KING
Solomon.King@law.columbia.edu • (347) 847-9923

Current Address:
400 West 120th Street, Apt. 9
New York, NY 10027

Permanent Address:
31 Weaver Drive
Philadelphia, PA 99999

EDUCATION

COLUMBIA LAW SCHOOL, New York, NY
J.D., expected May 2018
Activities: Public Interest Law Foundation
Student Senate
ACLU

UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA, Charlottesville, VA
B.A. with distinction, received May 2013
Major: Political Science
Honors: Holland Scholar (full-tuition scholarship)
Activities: College Democrats

EXPERIENCE

NEW YORK STATE OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL, New York, NY
Extern, Civil Rights Bureau
Spring 2018
Assisted lawyers in Civil Rights Bureau through Columbia Law School’s externship program. Investigated potential claim concerning an employer’s denial of a request for religious accommodation. Performed legal research about ADA’s public accommodation provision pertaining to polling site.

PROF. MATTHEW WAXMAN, COLUMBIA LAW SCHOOL, New York, NY
Research Assistant
Summer 2017
Researched U.S. national security intelligence and surveillance restrictions. Researched and edited content for casebook on privacy issues and 4th Amendment jurisprudence in light of new digital technologies.

TEACH FOR AMERICA, Oregon City, OR Kindergarten Teacher
Summer 2013 – Spring 2015
Taught 30 students to exceed one year’s growth in reading and mastery of key state benchmarks in math. Established after-school program and new reading programs.
Portion of Resume for Transfer Student

AKEYLA HARRISON
222 Riverside Drive, #2, New York, NY 10026
212-227-9153 • akeyla.harrison@law.columbia.edu

EDUCATION

Columbia Law School, New York, NY
J.D. expected May 2018
Honors: Human Rights Internship Program
Activities: Harlan Fiske Stone Moot Court Society
            Columbia Journal of Environmental Law, Submissions Editor
Note: Legal Measures to Curtail Global Warming, 22 CJEL (2014) (forthcoming)

Brooklyn Law School, Brooklyn, NY
September 2015-May 2016 (then transferred)
Honors: Phi Delta Phi Honor Society
Activities: Black Law Students Association
            Health Law and Policy Association

McGill University, Montreal, Canada
B.A. with great distinction, received May 2013
Honors: Edward Beatty Scholarship
Activities: Greenpeace University Chapter, President
            QPIRG, Board of Directors
            Simply Sweetly Choir

EXPERIENCE

Environmental Law Clinic, Columbia Law School, New York, NY
Student Participant Fall 2017
Researched environmental impact (including pollution and waste) of proposed expansion of slaughterhouse in Brooklyn on low-income communities and communities of color. Advised residents of their rights and resources.
BUILDING YOUR TEAM & FINDING YOUR HOST ORGANIZATION

Introduction

If you plan to apply for a project-based fellowship, you will need to devote a significant amount of time and energy to securing a host organization and developing a project idea. Most likely you will be thinking about both of these things at the same time.

Some students begin this process with a fairly specific project idea – usually growing out of work done with a clinic or externship, or during a summer job—and some students do not. If you can identify the population you are interested in serving, or an area of law you have been and want to continue working in, you can get started.

It is most important to remember that you are not expected to do all of this alone. As noted earlier, you will be “building your team” as you go through this process. Your “team” will be helpful in a range of ways from the early stages to the end – from suggesting fellowships, organizations and issues... that might be of interest to you and developing project ideas, to helping you prepare for interviews and evaluate options.

At the outset, as you begin to think about project ideas and organizations, you will identify resources to help you. The specific resources you use will depend on your individual interests, experiences and goals. Of course, begin by talking with your fellowship advisor. Together you will develop some initial strategies, likely along these three avenues:

1. Approaching a previous employer or supervisor, or your 2L summer organization;
2. Monitoring PSJD.org and Symplicity for postings from organizations looking to host an applicant for a project; and
3. Identifying other people who might be helpful at this stage (such as alums, former fellows, clinical professors, and faculty)

Whether or not you have a host organization, consulting with others is an important element of all fellowship applicants. This enables you to:

- learn about current issues, needs, and “hot topics”;
- meet practitioners in a given field;
- begin formulating project ideas; and
- get the “inside scoop” on an organization or funder (especially if you network with former fellows).

It is also often fun and inspiring to meet people doing the work you want to do.

How Do You Build Your Team?

There are various ways to do this. The easiest way is to talk to your contacts (such as your SJI fellowship advisor, other SJI staff, former employers, supervisors for pro bono/internship/externship positions, Columbia professors, and so forth) about your interests and fellowship goals. You should also make an effort at law school events or summer intern events to meet any speakers or panelists of interest to you. In turn, those individuals may be able to give you advice and information about a particular organization and/or introduce you to individuals at that organization or others in the field.

You can also do your own research to find organizations or individuals doing work you are interested in. For example, you can:

- look at organizational profiles in PSJD.org, the SJI public interest database on LawNet, and other informational databases;
- search the SJI fellowship honor roll on the SJI website (which lists Columbia Law School graduates who are current and former fellows and the places they worked);
- review job postings on PSJD.org and Symplicity (both include postings for organizations looking to host fellows);
- use LinkedIn and your existing network of friends and colleagues;
- look at lists of previous fellows on fellowship websites; and
• search the Internet for legal issues or organizations that interest you.

Your fellow students can be a good resource. Some may have had summer internships at organizations of interest. Also, current and former fellows are usually happy to share their experience and insights with applicants.

Unless you are committed to a particular geographic area, consider organizations or practitioners in a range of locations (keeping in mind the parameters of the particular fellowships you are considering).

Setting up a Meeting

Once you have a list of organizations to explore and/or individuals to contact, your next step is setting up meetings. Although it may feel awkward, the process is quite straightforward: it simply requires making contact with individuals at organizations or in fields you are interested in and asking to meet with them. You might be surprised to find how receptive and helpful public interest lawyers can be! Remember, you are not asking for a job; you are seeking knowledge and ideas so that you can pursue work you both deeply care about.

We tend to think of two different kinds of meetings:

- One is intended to explore the possibility of that organization hosting you for a fellowship application. As mentioned, sometimes there is a formal application process you must go through, but sometimes there is not. In either event, you want to think of this kind of meeting as something like a job interview.

- The other kind of meeting is to gather background information; that is, your goal is more to learn about the issues you are interested in or to get recommendations of offices to explore, rather than to secure a fellowship host. These kinds of meetings might be less formal, but remember that worlds are small—you still want to prepare and make a good impression. Anyone you speak with is in a position to connect you with or make an informal recommendation to someone else. For these reasons, Columbia faculty, SJI advisors, supervisors who already know you, students, and sometimes alums are the best places to start.

Once you identify an organization of interest and want to reach out to, the next question is who to contact. If you have a specific contact at an organization (either because you know the person or someone has suggested the person to you), then reach out directly to that individual. If you don’t, consult your SJI fellowship advisors. You might also look at the staff list of the organization and figure out who is likely to be the best person to approach by considering particular expertise, role in the organization, and their affiliations (such as Columbia alum). It is fine to contact someone with whom you have no direct connection. That person may not be interested in meeting with you, but there is no harm in trying. Even if the person you contact is not available to meet with you, s/he may direct you to someone else—for example, there may be a more appropriate person at the organization to talk to about fellowships, or s/he may know someone at another organization seeking to host a fellow.
Once you have identified the person to contact, you should send an email to request a meeting. Look at the attached sample for guidance, but remember that you should frame your correspondence so that it reflects who you are. There is not one “right” way to draft your request; however, you should follow these simple guidelines—while not making the email too lengthy:

- Introduce yourself and clearly state the purpose of your email (i.e., that you are looking for a host organization for a fellowship or looking to discuss their work for your project).
- If you know which fellowship(s) you plan to apply for, make sure to identify them.
- If applicable, mention who referred you or any other mutual acquaintance or relationship. If you already met the person you are writing to (such as at a law school event), include the context in which you met him/her.
- If you have not met or spoken with anyone at the organization, explain how you discovered or became interested in the organization.
- Briefly convey your background/experience in the field. Consider mentioning project ideas (if you have any) to show you have thought about it—but don’t sound too wedded to them.
- Explain that you would like to meet or speak with him/her. (Note that meeting in person, while not always possible, is generally preferable. It is harder to establish rapport and get to know each other over the phone. Also, if you are exploring the organization, meeting in the office will give you more information about whether it would be a good fit for you).
- Identify next steps (e.g., that you will call him/her in a few days).
- It is often a good idea to attach your resume to the email.

Make sure to follow up via telephone within a few days of sending your request for the meeting.

Please note: if you are responding to a posting by an organization that indicates they are looking to host a fellowship applicant, you should not follow the steps outlined here, but instead should respond to the posting more formally (i.e., with a resume and cover letter indicating your interest). Include any other application materials as required. Alert your networking contacts that you are applying for the opening (in case they have contacts there). If you know anyone on staff at that organization, let them know about your application. And, of course, consult with your fellowship advisor. Some organizations will ask also for a project proposal. This is often challenging, because you may not know the organization well. Also, you want to offer a thoughtful proposal, while at the same time conveying flexibility. Your advisor will be able to help with this.

Preparing to Meet

Especially for your meetings with potential fellowship hosts, preparation is key. These meetings could be structured like formal job interviews (for example, if the organization posted a job listing for a fellow) or could be more informal (for example, in response to your request for a meeting). Sometimes a meeting can be both formal and informal. You need to be prepared for both scenarios. Remember: you have a fellowship advisor, and you should consult with him/her!
In either kind of meeting, you want to get across your knowledge of the area of law, as well as your familiarity with the work of their organization (and with the person you are meeting with, if possible). Be prepared to answer questions about your interest in their field and their organization specifically, as well as about your experience, your goals, and so forth. Also, be prepared to explain why you want to do a fellowship and why the organization is a good fit for you. Come in ready to offer some potential project ideas and to discuss your application plans. You may be asked whether you are applying for more than one fellowship and whether you are approaching other organizations to be your host as well. Be honest!

To prepare for interviews, read everything you can about the organization and its work – and about the field in general. Review the Public Interest Job Search Toolkit section on public interest interviewing and practice the sample questions. If you have not interviewed recently, consider setting up a mock interview with SJI staff. Additionally, come with questions to ask your interviewer(s), such as:

- Do you have any current fellows? What are they working on?
- Have you hosted fellows in the past? What did they work on? [Note: if the organization has never had a fellow, you may need to educate them about the benefits and commitments of having a fellow, as well as the process and basic timelines for applying for a fellowship.]
- Are there particular fellowships you are interested in having an applicant apply for?
- What are you looking for in a fellow?
- Does your organization have particular needs, goals, or projects which you would like to see (or which could be addressed) in a fellowship proposal?
- Who would supervise me if I was a fellow here?
- What kind of training do you offer to new attorneys or fellows?
- Are you anticipating any big changes in the office or in your work in the next few years? Do you think the organization’s priorities will stay the same?
- Is there anyone else on staff I should meet with?

Following Up
At the close of the meeting, ask when you can expect to hear from the organization. Make sure to send a short thank you note (email is fine) within 24 hours of the interview to anyone you met with (see the sample here). Keep in contact without being imposing or invasive. Follow up on other potential leads until you hear back. If you receive another offer but prefer this organization, contact the preferred organization immediately, explain the situation, and ask when they will make a decision. If you accept another offer, withdraw your name from consideration ASAP and thank them again for their time.
FINDING A HOST: TRACKING CHART

This is a sample chart to track outreach to potential host organizations.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>HOST ORGS</th>
<th>Email w/resume</th>
<th>Follow-Up Call</th>
<th>Meeting</th>
<th>Thank You Sent</th>
<th>Follow-Up Calls</th>
<th>Decision</th>
<th>Other</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| Sanctuary for Families
PO Box 1406
Wall Street Station
New York, NY 10268
P: (212) 349-6009
F: (212) 349-6810
sanctuaryforfamilies.org
Contact: Mary Smith | 6/2 sent to Mary Smith | 6/9 | 6/18 w/ Mary Smith & Jane Donovan at office | 6/18 | 6/28 to Mary Smith | Email received 7/1: rejection | |
| The Door NYC
121 Ave. of the Americas
New York, NY 10013
(212) 941-9090
www.door.org | 6/3 sent to Joe Francis | 6/10 to Joe Francis; referred to Lizbeth Norris; sent follow-up email | 6/12 w/ Lizbeth Norris via phone | 6/12 | 6/22 to Lizbeth Norris; scheduled 2nd phone meeting for 6/29 | Phone call received 7/3: will host project! Want to meet in person on 7/16 to discuss project ideas | Need to re-search project ideas by 7/16 |
Sample Email Requesting Meeting with Potential Host

Dear ________________,

I just finished my second year at Columbia Law School, and I am planning to apply for postgraduate fellowships in a few months. I am particularly interested in [identify particular area of law/ particular legal issue/ particular population you want to work with] and would like to craft a fellowship proposal focusing on this issue. Because [name of organization] is a leader in this field, I would love the opportunity to meet with you to discuss whether you would be interested in serving as a host organization for my fellowship.

OPTION 2

I am in my second year at Columbia Law School, and I am planning to apply for postgraduate fellowships in a few months. I am particularly interested in [identify particular area of law/ particular legal issue/ particular population you want to work with] and would like to craft a fellowship proposal focusing on this issue. [Name of contact] suggested that I contact you to learn more about [name of your organization] and to explore whether you might be interested in serving as a host organization for my fellowship.

As you can see from my attached resume, I have a strong background in [particular area of law/particular legal issue/particular population]. [Add a couple of sentences about your experience in this area of law, mentioning any relevant summer jobs, internships, pro bono work, externships, clinics and so forth.] OPTIONAL: I would be particularly interested in doing a fellowship focusing on [add details here – don’t sound wedded to this, but use this to demonstrate some of your potential project ideas and knowledge of the field/organization’s work]. I would love to discuss with you any particular areas of need that your organization currently faces and how I could develop a project to address those needs.

I would welcome the opportunity to meet with you soon. I will call you next week to see if we can arrange a time. Thank you in advance.

Regards,

[Your name]
Sample Thank You Note (Via Email)

Sent: Monday 6/3/18 6:47pm
To: Mara Youdelman; Deborah Reid; Wayne Turner
CC:
Subject: Thank you

I wanted to thank you all again for meeting with me earlier today. I enjoyed learning more about the work of the DC office of National Health Law Program (NHeLP) and meeting your dynamic staff. The work of NHeLP is incredibly important, and I am especially interested in the direction your work has taken after the Supreme Court decision upholding the Affordable Care Act (ACA). I would welcome the opportunity to work on a fellowship project focusing on the issue of low-income workers’ right to healthcare coverage under ACA, as you suggested. I look forward to hearing from you soon about hosting my fellowship.

Best,
Carlos Sanchez
cs4555@columbia.edu
(212) 454-4554 (home)
(917) 692-6685 (cell)
FELLOWSHIP TRACKING CHART

A chart like this can be an invaluable tool for tracking the pieces of your project-based fellowship applications.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>FELLOWSHIP</th>
<th>Resume</th>
<th>Essays</th>
<th>Transcript</th>
<th>Refs &amp; Recs</th>
<th>Org Commit. Letter</th>
<th>Application</th>
<th>Other To-Do</th>
<th>Notes</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Skadden</td>
<td>Required (updated on 6/16)</td>
<td>Essay 1: second draft to advisor on 9/1; awaiting comment  Essay 2: received first draft comments from advisor  Essay 3: In progress</td>
<td>Required (ordered 7/1) (received 7/5)</td>
<td>2 Recs required</td>
<td>Contacted Prof Smith on 8/12; sent follow up email with resume and other info on 8/16; need to check in by 9/5 if not received  Contacted S.S. at Legal Aid NYC on 8/12; sent draft reference on 8/22 for his review and edits; being finalized now</td>
<td>Being drafted; expect to receive by 9/10; will attach 501(c)(3) qualifying letter</td>
<td>Need to fill out forms</td>
<td>Called SBP on 8/2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>K&amp;E</td>
<td>Required (updated on 6/16; need to update again in Dec)</td>
<td>2 Essays required (haven’t started drafting yet)</td>
<td>Required (received 7/16)</td>
<td>2 written refs required; Will use Skadden refs with tweak</td>
<td>Host org will tweak in early Dec; need 3 docs: commitment letter, host letter &amp; 501(c)(3)</td>
<td>Need to fill out forms</td>
<td>Advisor will be away Dec 19-Jan 5</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Equal Justice Initiative</td>
<td>Required (updated 6/3)</td>
<td>Letter of Interest (meet with SJI about 1st draft)</td>
<td>Required (received 7/16)</td>
<td>Not yet</td>
<td>N/A</td>
<td>Just the cover letter</td>
<td>Contact the 2 former fellows from Columbia</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
THE FELLOWSHIP/FUNDER INTERVIEW

Once applications are completed and submitted, the review process begins. Fellowship funders have different approaches to narrowing the pool of applicants (some send applications out to different readers, others have all applications reviewed by a committee within the funding organization), but inevitably a selected group will be invited to interview, most often with a small group of interviewers. The interview is a very important part of the process, and you should consult with your fellowship advisor to learn as much as you can about what to expect. Also, we cannot stress enough the value of mock interviews. SJI, alums with prior fellowship experience, and your host may all play a role in helping to prepare you. You should also consult the Public Interest Job Search Toolkit for general interviewing tips.

What are funders looking for?
At this stage, you can assume your written materials have been evaluated very highly. So what are funders looking for from the interview? Overall, they are looking for fellows who have the skills, knowledge, insight and personality to carry out the work or proposed project well. This includes the ability to serve clients compassionately and effectively, to work productively with stakeholders, other organizations, community partners, etc. as needed, and to be organized and able to follow through. Often funders will invite fellows to present their work, and thus poise and the ability to speak about your project are important. Finally, you are an investment, and so funders look for individuals who are deeply committed and likely to engage in the work long-term, and who will learn and grow from the fellowship experience. Generally, this amounts to a combination of self-confidence and humility, with passion and careful preparedness thrown in. Think about how you might convey this in an interview.

Getting prepared:
Before the interview:
- Research as much as you can about the fellowship from the fellowship website. Also look at who and what they have funded in the past.
- Speak with former fellows and alumni who have been through interviews with the particular funder.
- Know everything on your resume and cover letter and other application materials. Consider bringing relevant material.
- Develop 2-3 questions you have for the interviewing committee.
- Schedule mock interviews. Your fellowship advisor and host organization can be good resources.

As you prepare, keep in mind the importance of the following:
- Showing a personal connection to and a passion for the work you are proposing to do.
- Where proposing a project with a host organization, talking about how great the supervision will be there.
- Your focus on the clients.
- Being up to date and ready to discuss current events that relate to your project or the organization’s work.
- If relevant, being ready and able to discuss cultural/racial barriers that you may confront in your project/work, and how you will deal with these issues in your work.
- Knowledge of the former fellows/projects that are active in the same space as you are.
The interview:
Remember that interviews start in the elevator. That is, you don’t know who is in the elevator or waiting room, or who is at the reception desk or welcoming you in. Consider yourself being interviewed from the moment you walk in the building. Be kind, courteous and respectful.

Fellowship interviews are often done by a small committee, so you are likely to be interviewed by more than one person at the same time. For project-based fellowship interviews, the funder selection committee is often comprised of individuals with different levels of knowledge about your project and about the legal issues that will be involved in your work. You will need to keep this in mind as you present your project and answer questions. Often answering a question with a personal story or anecdote can work well to help you avoid too many generalities and convey your personal qualities and thoughtfulness.

Finally, think about connecting with your interviewers. A good handshake and eye contact go a long way. Being human is good, as is demonstrating your ability to relate to clients and others with whom you will be working.

Think confidently and be enthusiastic. Though don’t forget the value of self-awareness and humility. You are not expected to have all the answers or to have finished your learning.

The interview itself:
Interviews for organization fellowship are likely to be similar to those for public interest jobs, and so you might review the section on interviewing in the Public Interest Job Search Toolkit. If you are interviewing with a funder for a project-based fellowship, consider the following common questions:

- How did you pick your project?
- Why did you pick this particular topic (e.g., healthcare, domestic violence)?
- What kind of impact do you expect to have?
- How will you measure success?
- Why are you the right person to do this project?
- Where do you see yourself 10 (5, 20) years from now?
- What was the toughest situation you ever found yourself in, and how did you resolve it?
- What would you do about your issue (e.g., domestic violence, healthcare) if you were “Queen/King for the Day”?
- What are your career plans if you do not get this fellowship?
- Describe the supervision you will be given if you are a fellow.
- What is it about your hosting agency that makes you want to work with them?
- Who exactly will be your clients? Describe their lives.
- Where did you grow up? What was your life like?
- Why did you choose Columbia Law School?
- Do you have questions for us?

Depending on the work or your project, you might also be asked questions such as:
- What about this project requires a lawyer? Can this work be done by very skilled social workers?
• Where will your clients come from? How will they find you?
• What happens if a client comes to you and says she needs a place to sleep? How are you going to keep from taking one of your clients to your home? How are you going to deal with the emotional stress of dealing with such difficult lives and issues?
• How will you involve community partners?

CLOSING WORDS
Please don’t forget that SJI is here to ensure you have the support you need, and to help you all along the way. Reach out at any time for any reason!

As your research progresses, you may change your mind about what opportunities interest you. You may find it difficult to know which option(s) you prefer. That’s all ok—just keep in touch with your fellowship advisor. As you might predict, we advise you to cast a wide net.

And, while it is true that applying for project-based fellowships, in particular, requires a good amount of work – it is almost always beneficial. Whether or not you are awarded one of these fellowships, the work you put into developing an application invariably pays off. You will have thought deeply about your interests and goals, developed ways to articulate your interests and experiences, met people doing work you admire, learned about substantive issues, needs and work being done within your focus area, developed written documents that you will draw on for other applications, and met people and organizations that are interested in having you work with them.

Finally, a word about timing and decisions: Each public interest fellowship, staff attorney position, government honors program and clerkships are likely to have different application deadlines, and extend offers at different times. This often means you are asked to consider an offer before you hear from all of the entities you have applied to. If you find yourself in that position (and you are not sure the first offer is your first choice), please consult with SJI. These are coveted positions, and decisions are not always easy. An acceptance should be honored, and when an offer is accepted other applications should be withdrawn. There are sometimes (though not always) ways to extend deadlines by which you need to respond, or find some information regarding outstanding applications. But this is a delicate process.